

Games man advises SIM entertainment designers

SJB

Jacques Sylvander has joined the advisory board of In-Fusio, a French developer of entertainment products and services for mobile phones.

The company offers a range of necessarily simple yet compelling single and multi-player games which run from the mobile phone's SIM card and are designed to be offered as value added services by networks. Current titles include Quizz, In Spirit and Merno.

Sylvander started his career at Philips, and was also the general manager of the French division of Psygnosis, a Sony-owned leading edge video games development and publishing company.

